Simple AT tips for your POV

By Ted Warden

USAG Vicenza DPTMS

Standing out in a crowd is never a good thing, especially when you may be making yourself a target for criminals or "lone wolf" assailants.

That is just as true when it comes to your Privately Owned Vehicle (POV). The same good anti-terrorism sense that applies to individual appearances also applies to motor vehicles. Do not make your POV a criminal target or, even worse, a target of an assailant who may want to cause harm to U.S. personnel and property.

Keeping a low profile and not standing out on the road or at the mall are two reinforcers of the primary guidelines of practicing prudent anti-terrorism measures and keeping yourself and your family safe. The bottom line is: Don't make yourself an easy target.

Recommendations:

Remove unauthorized decals and stickers from your POVs that could be used to identify the vehicle as belonging to a Vicenza or Camp Darby Military Community member. That includes university logo stickers, stateside installation registration or pass stickers, Airborne logo stickers and the like. Putting them out for public display runs contrary to prudent Force Protection practices in addition to them being unauthorized according to USASETAF Regulation 190-3, 15 May 2005. Not removing those decals could also you in a position having your vehicle fail an initial or renewal registration inspection process.

Do not put yourself in a compromising position. Do not become a potential target by standing out in the crowd.

If you notice suspicious activity or violence, report it via the iWatch Community Awareness website (click link below) or notify the Military Police immediately at 634-7626/7233 or 800-064-077.

And remember S5I: See Something Suspicious, Say Something Immediately!

Legitimate taxis more accessible in Vicenza

By Grant Sattler
USAG Vicenza PAO

Signs and bright yellow paint now mark designated taxicab spaces beside the Caserma Renato Del Din gate, making legitimate taxi service easily accessible to Soldiers who live and work there.

The addition of the Del Din taxi stand, and one to be installed soon by the Comune di Vicenza on Viale della Pace, outside the Caserma Carlo Ederle Gate 2, is part of a joint effort between the Vicenza Military Community and the city to put the brakes on illegal taxis.

U.S. Army Garrison Commander Col. Robert Menist Jr., Vicenza Assessore for Economic Development, Filippo Zanetti, and representatives of the local taxi drivers' union held a press event Tuesday at Del Din to highlight steps being taken to help eliminate Soldiers' use of illegal taxis. Vicenza Radio Taxi Cooperative is the only licensed and regulated taxicab operation in Vicenza.

"It is forbidden for our Soldiers to use illegal taxis," Menist told the Italian press. "If they do, not only are they not in compliance with Italian law, but they will also be subject to disciplinary actions."

Knowingly hiring an illegal taxi is contributing to illegal activity, said Menist, stressing that he wants Soldiers be involved in the Italian community. More transportation options make being part of the Vicenza life easier for Del Din billeted Soldiers.

Safety, legal issues

Additionally, officials pointed out that because illegal taxis are unregulated, they present safety concerns. Operators do not meet the same licensing and vehicle safety requirements that legitimate taxis must.

Illegal taxi services are operated without a metering device, and pre-agreed fares can change when the occupant reaches the destination, leading to disagreements. Legitimate taxis operate with meters or will present an established regular route fare, such as a set rate to and from installations and downtown, or between Ederle and Del Din.

These set fares have been agreed upon by taxi union members in coordination with the Comune.

Zanetti said the goal of the effort is to eliminate the illegal taxi trade, which often fuels other illegal activities, such as distribution of illegal substances and prostitution, and to better integrate Americans in the social and economic fabric of the city.

To arrange a taxi pick up, customers need only send an SMS to 338-844-2000 specifying city and address.

Vicenza Radio Taxi Service President

Pierpaolo Campagnolo and Bruno Fabbris, vice president, reiterated that service is available 24 hours a day. At least eight taxicabs will be in service during peak Soldier demand times on weekends and evenings, they said. The cooperative operates 40 taxis in all.

Markum's duties include enhancing security and awareness to prevent a terrorist attack. His mission is to assist the command and keep the community alert to suspicious activity indicators, he said.

He comes to Vicenza from Fort Huachuca, Arizona, with a combined 28 years of experience working for the government.

Combined Resolve II under way at JMTC

By 7th Army JMTC PAO

GRAFENWÖHR, Germany - U.S. Army's European Rotational Force will participate in a major exercise alongside NATO allies and partner nation forces at the Army's Grafenwöhr and Hohenfels Training Areas in southeast Germany this month and next.

Exercise Combined Resolve II will include more than 4,000 participants from 13 nations including Albania, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Croatia, France, Georgia, Hungary, Lithuania, Romania, Serbia, Slovenia and the U.S.

Combined Resolve II will be the largest scheduled multi-national exercise in Europe in 2014, said Brig. Gen. Walter Piatt, command of the 7th Army Joint Multinational Training Command in Grafenwöhr.

"Of the 4,000 Soldiers, over 50 percent are multinational," said Piatt. "We've done larger exercises in the past, but this is the first time all the forces will be together in one place under a single brigade task organization."

The U.S. rotational force will consist of the 2nd Battalion, 5th Cavalry Regiment, a unit of the 1st Brigade Combat Team, 1st Cavalry Division. The brigade combat team is designated as the Army's regionally-aligned force for the U.S. European Command.

Combined Resolve II will also mark the first use of the Army's European Activity Set, a group of combat equipment and vehicles pre-positioned at the Grafenwöhr Training Area to outfit and support rotational forces when they arrive in Europe. The set includes the most updated versions of the Army's M1A2 Abrams tanks and M2 Bradley infantry fighting vehicles.

The first phase of Combined Resolve II will include force-on-force maneuver training at the Army's Joint Multinational Readiness Center in Hohenfels. The 2-5th Cavalry will then move to Grafenwöhr for gunnery training culminating in a unique, multinational live-fire exercise that will blend virtual, simulated and maneuver forces to replicate a complex operating environment.

Lt. Col. Robert Bennett and his son Ryan lay flowers on the graves of fallen American Soldiers April 26 during the Vicenza Scouts pilgrimage to France for the 2014 Normandy Jamboree.

Vicenza Scouts complete yearlong odyssey to Normandy Jamboree

By Lt. Col. Robert Bennett
Special to the Outlook

Most of the 4,000 Scouts who attended the closing ceremonies of the 2014 Normandy Jamboree April 24 at the historic landing sites in France learned how their scouting experiences intertwined with the experiences of more than 150,000 Soldiers and sailors who stormed Omaha Beach 70 years ago.

For the 21 Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Cub Scouts from Vicenza, it was also the culmination of a yearlong study during which those very linkages were highlighted in multiple forums and media. The experience has seared these lessons into the fabric of their youthful souls and has made them more effective "Messengers of Peace" for the rest of their lives.

The Vicenza Scouts began their preparation for the 2014 Normandy Jamboree June 6, 2013. Each Scout was assigned an historical character for to follow through the course of their historical studies. Many were assigned characters who had a particular significance to their own families — for instance, a Soldier from a unit in which a family member had previously served.

Each Scout studied an historical figure of their own gender. Girl Scouts traced the lives of French Resistance heroines, WAVEs, British Home Guards and other roles played by women in the war effort. Cub Scouts researched the lives of participants who survived the battle.

The Scouts traced their character's historical roles from Dec. 6, 1941 (the day before Pearl Harbor), through diverse campaigns in Europe, from North Africa to Sicily to mainland Italy. Two classes focused on the planning and preparation of Operation Overlord, the Allied invasion of Europe. The final academic class focused on the invasion itself, which began on D-Day, June 6, 1944.

In their classes Scouts learned what their characters did during that time. They learned to read maps and conduct land navigation at night in preparation for the Jamboree. They visited one of the American military cemeteries in Italy or a battle site in the Vicenza area, while meeting the standards for earning their American Heritage Merit Badge.

The Girl Scouts developed a patch recognizing their participation in the program, and the Cub Scouts received credit toward their rank advancement as well. More than 40 Scouts in all attended the academic portions of the class, and 21 Scouts traveled to the Jamboree.

Pilgrimage to Normandy

They began their various journeys by bus, aircraft or family vehicle April 23 and by the next day many were already visiting the battlefield sites.

First Class Scout Ryan Bennett took his family, two other Scouts and three Scouters on a tour of the Easy Green sector of Omaha Beach where his character, Capt. Joe Dawson, earned a Distinguished Service Cross on D-Day. First Class Scout Samuel Clark visited the location where his character, 1st Lt. Jimmie Monteith, who was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor, was killed in action. Clark later decorated Monteith's grave at the American Military Cemetery in Colleville-sur-Mer.

New Boy Scout Edward Cook visited Pegasus Bridge, where his character, German Col. Hans van Luck, led a counterattack that threatened the eastern flank of the Allied invasion force.

"Giving the Scouts a character on which to focus made the experience more real for them," said former Troop 295 Scoutmaster Brian Curtis.

On the night of April 25, the Vicenza Scouts recreated the experiences of American paratroopers near Saint-Marie-du-Mont, the objective famously seized on D-Day by the 506th Parachute Infantry Regiment, the Band of Brothers. Scouts and Scouters, who escorted the groups for safety, were dropped off on roadsides several kilometers from the town square without maps or additional guidance. The only data they were given was the name of their objective and the time they needed to arrive at the church in the town square, an historical echo of the original parachutists' mission.

of country roads and small farms, passing near the same fields where his great uncle, wounded just a few days and a few miles into the invasion, linked up with 101st Airborne Division Soldiers 70 years ago.

"I didn't expect the dark to be the obstacle it was, but then we were alone in it," Barton said.

Throughout the four-day jamboree, Scouts lived through the realities that Soldiers had endured 70 years before. Their campgrounds were constantly doused in rain and hail, and unexpectedly cold temperatures added an unavoidable authenticity to the experience. By the third day, the campground was a muddy quagmire.

Schedules changed constantly and people got separated and reunited with their units at campfires and outdoor ceremonies, just as their predecessors had on the beaches of Normandy. But, like the Soldiers before them, the Scouts stayed focused and kept together to accomplish what they had set out to do.

During closing ceremonies April 27, each Scout organization placed wreaths at the foot of the American Youth Rising from the Waves sculpture in the American Military Cemetery, and decorated the graves of individual Soldiers buried in the hallowed ground.

For many Scouts, this final act seared the meaning of the entire three days into their memories. The Boy Scouts Transatlantic Council received permission to award the "Messengers of Peace" award to those individuals who completed the jamboree. The Scouts from Vicenza had certainly earned it.

Vicenza takes silver in Euro volleyball finals

By USAG Vicenza PAO

Congratulations to the U.S. Army Africa volleyball team, who fought their way to a second place finish at the 2014 IMCOM Europe Unit Level Volleyball in Wiesbaden, Germany, last weekend.

Representing Vicenza in the Europe-wide playoffs, the team pushed aside a 21st Theater Support Command squad, representing USAG Rheinland-Pfalz, to take second, and played hard against the championship team, Company D, 5-158th, from USAG Ansbach.

"It was tougher than last year," said team member Ron Aquino. "There were certainly more teams than last year. We needed a few more bodies. It was a very tough finals. They beat us."

But spirits were good and the team enjoyed the playoff, he said.

Some members are pursuing the possibility of putting together a community-wide team to play over the summer and are contacting Italian teams in the area to set up matches, he said.

Motorcycle safety course key to riding in Italy

Story and photos by Chiara Mattiolo

Darby Military Community PAO

May is motorcycle safety awareness month at Camp Darby, where riding safety was reinforced for bikers of all levels attending basic and advanced motorcycle safety training May 6-7.

According to the Motorcycle Safety Foundation website, the Military Sport Bike Riders Course is a one-day course that combines classroom instruction and range exercises. It is nearly identical to the Experienced Rider Course, but places additional emphasis on the handling characteristics of sport bikes.

The essential and expanded core courses are part of the foundation's Rider Education and Training System and are designed to develop a novice rider into an excellent rider.

"This class is meant to allow riders to be safer on the road," said instructor Master Sgt. Gavin Trepacz of 731st Munitions Squadron. "It is a very satisfying feeling to take people who never rode a bike and seeing them riding on their own."

The basic training is a 16-hour undertaking, said Tech. Sgt. Casey Heard of 731st Munitions Squadron, who served as an instructor.

Little more than halfway through fiscal year 2014, fatal motorcycle accidents are already 33 percent above last year's numbers, said Command Sgt. Major Leeford Cain of the U.S. Army Combat Readiness and Safety Center in a recent letter to all military leaders.

A deeper look, however, reveals an even more disturbing statistic: as of April 21, 10 of the 12 motorcycle losses reported this year have involved enlisted leaders at the rank of sergeant and above, according to Cain.

Motorcycle riders inherently face more hazards than conventional vehicle drivers and passengers. But that does not mean riders have no control over their personal safety. It is up to us, as senior leaders, to ensure our Soldier riders have the best opportunity to 'train out' the risks of motorcycling, Cain wrote.

"Those riders interested in riding sports bikes are required, in addition to the basic course, to take the Military Sport Bike Riders Course, which is a more advanced level training," said Heard.

"This was a very good learning experience for me," said Airman 1st Class Zack Stufgess of 731st Munitions Squadron. "I borrowed a friend's bike to take this class and I really would like to buy my own bike and ride Italy at a cheaper rate."

Darby Military Community motorcyclists of all levels undertake hands-on training to learn the critical safety components of biking in Italy during rider education and training conducted May 6-7.
